As an interim project the Brandon Road proposal has considerable merit even though it would only provide one-way control of ANS. We see no apparent downside to moving forward, hopefully on a fast track.
What are the options for control methods and has there been any consideration to closing the locks? It has been difficult to obtain volume and cost data for down-river shipping so maybe this would not be feasible right now.
Pending approval is there a time frames for project start and completion?
Thank you for continuing to work on this issue, Lake Erie probably would not survive an invasion of Asian Carps.
