It seems that various political entities have used the time that the Corps has taken to conduct an impressive, all encompassing study as a crutch to justify a lack of 100% effective action in permanently closing off the Chicago Canal. Enough information was already available to justify closing the canal. They have chosen to "fiddle while Rome burns" thereby risking the economic and recreational future of the great lakes. The canal should be closed now and then proceed to address the other potential transmission sites. The Corps should recommend that action now in order to justify the use of tax payers money used to conduct the summary.
