Army Corp. of Engineers,

On behalf of the 200 members of the Dwight Lydell Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America, I ask that you please barricade the entrance to Lake Michigan from Asian Carp and other invasive species. Act quickly to design improved systems for Chicago's storm water and shipping. Spoiling the world's largest fresh water system, its sportfishing, ecology, and $7 billion economy would be too disastrous.

Please barricade now!

Sincerely,

Georgia Donovan
chapter president

Dear Army Corps of Engineers,
(via GLMRIS)

Please do what you can to create a workable solution to keeping invasive species, including all ASIAN CARP, out of the Great Lakes and their tributaries. Please do not wait. Barricade. And then come up with a new system for Chicago's storm water, and their shipping. Better systems may create more jobs.

We cannot un-do the problem once it is spread to the Great Lakes. (We still have lamprey...) It must be fixed while there's still a chance, within the Mississippi.

I write for myself, but also as chapter president of the Izaak Walton League conservation group.

Sincerely,
Georgia Donovan
