GLMRIS is involved w/Army Corps of Engineers, and may have a say in current activity that may determine whether the Asian Carp & other destructive invasive species impact the Great Lakes/St. Lawrence River system. As the group I belong to, Save The River, has shown over & over, the Corps has a horrendous track record. The woeful dikes of post-Katrina New Orleans are only the best known example. The Corps' statements about "studying" the Asian Carp, etc., and "reducing" the Carp's impact (instead of accepting the obvious negative danger the Carp presents, and PREVENTING its introduction) show a very inadequate response to this threat. PLEASE consider my comments and contact the very competent people at Save The River about this urgent matter! Thank you.
