Good Afternoon,

As a lifelong resident of the Great Lakes basin, I am utterly disappointed and frustrated by the continued failures of our various government organizations to find a solution for the Asian carp crisis. This has been a known issue for years. It is tragic that it had to become a crisis before it got attention. Even worse, now that our fickle media has moved to on other topics, I am terrified that these same government orgs have the opportunity to continue to mismanaging this issue. Something needs to be done and the organizations that have spent years and sifinificant funds doing research... need to deliver applicable solutions now. This unacceptable at every level and definition.
