The failure to control invasive species in the Great Lakes is a sad legacy!

The USACE needs to study solutions that will completely prevent the movement of invasive species between the Great Lakes, the Mississippi River, and other North American river systems and/or conduits of invasive species migration.

The USACE needs to provide answers for the Chicago portion of the study within 18 months.

The USACE needs to be proactive in its efforts and proceed quickly before successful breeding stocks of additional invasive species become established and spread further...
